

My University

Experience so far...

So far, university has been an absolute blast!

I chose to study Geography at Queen's University, Belfast, and I'm also doing a Biodiversity module along with this because I'd love to pursue a career in Conservation or Environmental Management.

I am staying in Elms Accommodation, and within the first week of term, I had become really close friends with my flatmates, who all come from Northern Ireland, England and Scotland. The Treehouse is the central hub of Elms Village, which organises many activities ranging from colouring-in meditation sessions, to bus trips to IKEA.

It's comforting knowing that even though I'm not at home during the week, my family is never too far away— ready to offer me advice on how to budget my money so I can still afford the occasional Nando's.

Recently, I was elected as a course representative for Geography. There are so many more extra-curricular clubs you can join, such as academic societies and Student Union leadership positions. I was surprised to find there was a Paintballing society and a Dragon Slayers Club.

I can't wait to see what the rest of the year will bring and I look forward to the challenges that may come with it. But I know that whatever happens, I'll always carry my Loreto roots with me.
